Play Therapy Supervisors' Workshop: Supervision in the Language of Play

This workshop is for Registered Play Therapists (RPT) and experienced play therapists currently seeking the RPT-S credential. As play therapy is most often a non-verbal, process oriented intervention based on its own theoretical models, effective supervision requires not only advanced play therapy skills, but also an understanding of the specific challenges faced by the play therapist. This workshop will introduce you to the specialized skill set you need in order to foster the professional development of therapists who wish to mature in their practice of play therapy.

Learning Objectives Participants will:

1. Be able to identify two theoretical frameworks for supervision that are best suited to promote a play therapist's professional growth.
2. Be familiar with techniques of supervision that are play-based and helpful for the practice of play therapy.
3. Review legal and ethical issues, such as liability, informed consent, and confidentiality that are of specific concern to play therapists.
4. Review guidelines for use of technology, such as video-recording of play therapy sessions and video-conferencing.
5. Be familiar with clinical issues especially relevant to working with children and their families and to engaging clients in play therapy,.
6. Explore the supervisory relationship through play-based supervision activities that build trust and rapport.

Schedule:

8:45 a.m. Registration and check-in
9:00 – 12:15 p.m. online session with 15-minute break.

Handouts and certificate of attendance will be sent via email following the workshop.
