Woodland Park, CO

Selection, Not Collection: Creating Sand Tray Worlds

This interactive workshop explores the intentional selection of sand tray therapy miniatures, focusing on clinical utility rather than sheer quantity. Participants will learn essential categories, cultural considerations, and strategies for curating a meaningful and diverse set. Through theoretical review, discussion and hands-on exercises, attendees will refine their miniature selection to enhance therapeutic depth and client engagement. Additionally, each participant will create their own resin river or pond to take home, adding a personal and symbolic element to their sand tray collection.

Learning Objectives:

1. Identify essential categories of sand tray therapy miniatures and understand their symbolic significance in the therapeutic process.
2. Plan strategies for curating a diverse yet intentional selection of miniatures that meet the cultural, developmental, and clinical needs of clients.
3. Apply practical guidelines for maintaining, organizing, and adapting a sand tray miniature collection based on client needs and therapeutic goals.

4. Create a personalized resin river or pond to enhance a sand tray collection and deepen their understanding of the role of symbolic representation in therapy.

As providers for Colorado Play Therapy Training, Jane L. Johnson and Linda Klein are approved by the Association for Play Therapy to offer continuing education specific to play therapy. COPTT is APT approved provider 10-277.

This workshop will count as 3 hours continuing education for the Registered Play Therapist credential.

As part of this interactive workshop, participants will have the opportunity to create their own resin piece to take home. Each attendee can choose between crafting a river or a pond, allowing them to personalize a meaningful water element for their sand tray collection. This hands-on experience will not only enhance their understanding of symbolic representation in therapy but also provide them with a unique, custom-made piece to integrate into their clinical practice.

There will be an additional fee of $25.00 per participant to cover supply costs.
